

June 12, 2009
(c. Online)

All-in-one recycling center from Mode

I'll be the first to admit my failures when it comes to organizing the recyclables in my house. No matter what size, shape or color bins and bags I use, everything always ends up looking a mess somehow and not really helping me keep organized.

That's why I'm so very interested in this sweet-looking all-in-one recycling center from Mode.

The 28-inch tall unit can hold 17 gallons of waste and has separate bins for small cans and milk jugs, newspaper and magazines, and larger 8-liter bottles. A built-in odor eliminator keeps things smelling fresh even as you wait for the digital Recycle Day Reminder on top to tell you when to take everything out for the collectors. A mail slot also lets you easily file junk letters in their proper place.

Versions starts at $179 and upgrades include a built-in aluminum can compactor, a device that tracks how much you recycle, or an even cleaner and sleeker looking stainless steel facade.

Via Treehugger.

Posted by Natalie Rodriguez | Categories: Gadgets & Electronics, Green Home, Storage | Permalink

